PRICE: TWO CENTS

Negro Prisoner Shot Escaping

Willie Green Wounded by Chaing-Gang Guard Harry Sneed When He Makes Dash Down Craghead Street.

Harry Sneed, who this morning shot and injured an escaping negro from the chain gang, is himself under $500 bond for appearance in the United States Court here next September charged with bootlegging, it developed this afternoon. His name is H. H. Sneed, and he was caught towards end of Craghead St. W. Abbott in an automobile containing 72 gallons of liquor on the Mattheville road, it is alleged by federal officers.

Chief-of-Police Bell asked if this was true today said that so far as he was aware it was not. He said that the two men, as he understand it, are different. Sergeant J. L. Edwards was not certain. Two transfer car men questioned this afternoon said that Sneed who did the shooting this morning is the man who was apprehended, one of them stating that Sneed had talked with him about the bootleg charge since becoming a guard. A third transfer car driver, Gregory by name, corroborates the statement to Police Officer Bates. Police Officer M. L. Coward states that he warned Frank Cousins about the circumstances before Cousins named him as a guard. Cousins told Coward, in his letter, that another police officer had recommended Sneed for the job.

Major Woodring admitted that he had vested full police authority in Sneed, who carries a rifle while guarding the prisoners. The major had heard of no such suspicion against the man and swore in Sneed since he was recommended for the post by Cousins.

Efforts to reach Cousins by phone failed this afternoon, there being no means of wire communication with the rock quarry.

Willie Green, a negro serving two years on the city chain gang was shot and injured severely on Craghead street soon after five o'clock this morning when the prisoners were being taken to the rock quarry and when Green tried to make his third escape from custody. Releasing him from "take" chains about his wrists as the gang was crossing Craghead street, from Patton Green darted out of line. Frank Cousins, who has charge of the gang, whipped out his revolver but Officer Harry Sneed who is armed with a shot gun loaded with buck shot told Cousins not to shoot and Speed, taking careful aim with the Winchester shot the negro who was running at a distance of thirty yards. Green fell to the ground, got up and walked towards the officers. He was placed in a wagon and removed to the jail.

Wheat Crop Abundant But Not Filled Out

While the wheat crop, which is now being harvested in this section is reported as one of the largest ever grown of recent years in this section, farmers are complaining of the yield, saying that the abundant rains which reflect a growing interest in this form of education. The three churches which have joined hands in the undertaking are Mount Vernon Methodist church, the First Presbyterian church and the First Baptist church. Rev. J. Callaway Robertson, D. D., pastor of Mount Vernon, reported today that there is an enrollment of 300 with a daily average attendance of 250.

The school is being conducted in three divisions and has a faculty of 79 teachers. Children of ages ranging from 5 to 8 are taking a kindergarten course and receiving a six-weeks school at the First Presbyterian Sunday school room each day under the tutelage of Miss Margaret Brydon and Miss Helen Cook. Children from 9 to 12 are meeting at Mount Vernon church under Miss Olin Thornton, director of religious education at that church, while the intermediates or children ranging from 13 to 15 are meeting at the First Baptist under the direction of Francis Harrison. The curriculum embraces training in a church featuring Biblical instruction, hymns, metrical psalms and instruction in prayer. There is a daily period of 45 minutes in Bible study and there is also a period of manual training hand-mock making, sewing, wood carving and basket making being included. There is also each day a period devoted to patriotic education emphasizing the relationship between the individual, the community, stage and nation. The smaller children in the elementary division are not following the regular curriculum but the others are hearing valuable instruction along educational lines.

The course will last a full month. Dr. Robertson has received enquiries from as far south as Alabama indicating that Danville's effort is being followed by other communities in the south.

Membership Drive Starts On Thursday

The annual membership drive of the Chamber of Commerce will start on Thursday morning when 10 teams will start on an effort to secure two hundred additional members. The membership committee will meet the Board of Directors at 9:30 o'clock Thursday morning for final instructions. This, according to Secretary E. L. Watkins, is the last drive scheduled at this time for the present year.

Allege Tobacco Co. Is Insolvent

A petition asking that the Piedmont Tobacco Company Inc., be adjudicated bankrupt was filed this morning in the office of the clerk of the United States court. The petition is filed by the Wells Electric Company, and Max Spiegel and Sons Co., Inc. of New York, and alleges that the local company, which has an authorized capital of over $500,000, is insolvent. The Piedmont Tobacco Company, Inc., has 29 days during which to file papers making an answer to the petition. The local concern has been manufacturing cigarettes and ping tobacco for several years and only recently sold another issue of stock. It had numerous orders and appeared to be making good headway in the production and sale of cigarettes. Efforts have been made by a committee of citizens to prevent just such action as has been instituted, but the plan was vetoed by creditors. Lack of capital to operate appears to be mainly responsible for the president's condition, it is said.

Married French Priests Will Found New Church

PARIS, June 12.—Maxime Adret, 64, French priests who have been expelled from the Catholic Church of France for marrying announced the foundation of a national church.

"We consider marriage a necessity to safeguard for a great number of us in this country," he said. "It is said, 'Marriage is only a question of discipline in the church and it is not doctrinal.' Marriage was permitted in Catholic church until 1653."

M. Adret is finding support among the other expelled priests who are not recognized by the church.

They say they will wear clerical garments, conduct services and maintain themselves as priests.

200 at Census Bureau Are to Be Released

WASHINGTON, June 12.—More than 200 persons employed in mechanical and clerical capacities in the Census Bureau will be released June 30, according to a statement Saturday.

The release of these workers will leave about 800 to carry on the work a few more than the regular census force for other than decennial censuses.

The quarters used in 1920, at Sixth and R streets northwest, will be retained for the present, it is believed the Bureau will be moved later to the Conference Department.

Three Leading Churches Unite in Promoting Christian Knowledge, Enrollment Being 300.

The Daily Vacation School of Religion promoted by three of the leading churches in Danville and which has been in operation for more than a week, being attended by an unusually large number of children this year, reflecting a growing interest in this form of education. The three churches which have joined hands in the undertaking are Mount Vernon Methodist church, the First Presbyterian church and the First Baptist church. Rev. J. Callaway Robertson, D. STOCK MARKET SHOWS LOSSES OF SEVERAL POINTS

NEW YORK, June 12.—To the accompaniment of a turn over aggregating 1,750,000 shares today's stock market registered numerous net losses of two to about ten points. The reaction, affected every division of the list, but was most pronounced among oils, steels, equipments and miscellaneous issues which featured the long sustained spring rise.

Fully one-third of the day's business took place in the last hour, the mechanical facilities of the exchange being taxed beyond capacity, so extremely were the offerings of that period that the official ticker did not register its final quotations until 3:22 o'clock.

Reasons for the violent reversal, which followed sharp setback of last week, differed widely, but in quarters close to the exchange it was a matter of gossip that much of the selling originated with interests which have been affected by the "reform" movement upon which the exchange recently embarked.

Today's reactionary stocks included United States steel which last Saturday issued a disappointing statement of May unfilled tonnage; the so-called "merger" steels, namely, Republic, Lackawanna and Midvale, domestic and foreign oils, such as Sinclair, Mexican petroleum and General Asphalt, and market favorites of the types represented by Baldwin, Studebaker, United States rubber and American woolen.

Today Dawson chemical felt the distinction of scoring the greatest decline that stock losing 9½ points.

FERRIS WHEEL JOYFUL TURNS INTO NIGHTMARE OF DEATH

NEW YORK, June 12.—The fury of the electrical storm that swept New York late today destroyed property and life, broke suddenly over a little amusement park at Coney Island, the Bronx, dashed into a trolley wheel crowded with young people, crushed it to the ground and passed on, leaving five dead and more than 40 injured.

Shrieks of mirth broke from the steel cars of the wheel as it carried its cargo of youth high up into the breezes. Then the storm had madened cries of fear and agony as the upper half broke away and was catapulted by the winds into the twisted steel, girders and human bodies.

The hundreds of men, women and children in the resort were thrown into a panic. Amid the high ring flashes, the thunder's roar and the rain torrents, women fainted and men fought and children were brushed aside in frantic efforts to reach shelter and to lose sight of the geyser.

TO THE CITIZENS OF DANVILLE:

I respectfully announce myself a candidate for re-election to the office of Superintendent of the Water, Gas and Electric Departments of the City of Danville, subject to the Democratic primary to be held August 1, 1922.

I started with these Departments as Secretary and Treasurer in 1900; in 1908 upon the recommendation of the late Capt. C. A. (Capt. C. A. Clegg, former Superintendent) I was elected by the City Council Assistant Superintendent. In 1914, at the death of Captain Ballou, I was chosen Superintendent, and by successive City Councils from that date until 1914 I was re-elected by unanimous vote. In 1914, 1916, 1918 and 1920, I have been re-elected by the people at popular election without opposition.

During this period of 32 years no charge has been made against me as a citizen and none against my administration of the properties entrusted to my supervision.

Since I have been Superintendent, the City Pump House and Filter Plant, the City Gas House and the City Electric Light and Power Station have all been planned and erected. During the period of my administration, our patronage has grown from perhaps 1,500 customers to a total of more than 12,000. Our receipts have increased from less than $50,000.00 a year to more than $500,000.00 a year. Whereas these Departments formerly produced receipts less than the disbursements, they now turn into the general treasury of the City, under normal conditions, from $75,000.00 to $100,000.00 in excess of the disbursement.

When the City Council placed me in financial charge of the City's Departments the property value, exclusive of any franchises, was $250,000.00. Since that time and while the City Council and the people of Danville have seen fit to continue me in charge of these Departments, these property values have increased $1,000,000.00, so that the fair value of the property owned by the City at this time is not less than $1,250,000.00. It is a matter of pride to me as a citizen of Danville that whereas the citizens of Greensboro, High Point, Salisbury, Winston-Salem, Durham, Raleigh and other North Carolina cities pay $1.00 a thousand cubic feet for gas, the gas consumers of Danville pay only $1.20. This means that during the past year the gas takers in Danville paid for the gas they used $91,000.00 less than they would have been charged for the same quantity and quality of gas in any of the cities above mentioned. A like saving in water and electric light and power will be seen by comparing the rates in cities similarly situated with Danville, throughout the entire South.

The records of the City Council will show that as Superintendent of the Gas Department I have always, in response to their requests to me for recommendations, advised against their raising the price of gas, and I shall in the future make to the Council a recommendation for a reduction in the price of gas just as soon as it can be done without cutting the wages of our faithful employees. It should be remembered that Danville was one of the very few cities in the country which did not raise its rates on water or electricity in the abnormal cost period, during and subsequent to the war. At the present time our rates on water, gas and electricity are lower than any city in the United States similarly located.

It would seem that a business of this magnitude and requiring trained and experienced supervision would more likely procure satisfactory results under an official who had devoted 32 years to its practical management than could be hoped for under the management of one who has had no experience whatever in producing and distributing water, gas and electricity.

I will appreciate the good will, the vote and the influence of the Citizens of Danville in giving me a vote of confidence upon my record, though it will be impossible to see each voter personally in so short a time. If re-elected I pledge a faithful discharge of my duty and to stand in the future as I have endeavored to stand in the past for the best interests of the City of Danville, and its citizens.

Respectfully submitted,

FRANK TALBOTT

Lowly Corncob Source of Motor Fuel Substitute

Lowly-Found Furfural Also Takes Place of Hard Rubber—Is U. S. Discovery.

NEW YORK, June 12.—The Department of Agriculture, after six years of trying, has rescued the lowly corn cob from the ignominy of hog's-doller and raised it to the level of a substitute for hard rubber and a possible motor fuel supply.

This has been made possible through the extraction of a corn cob by-product known as furfural, according to Dr. W. V. Skinner, assistant chief of the Bureau of Chemistry. The production of furfural is commercial scale at about 6 cents a pound was made possible through the work of Dr. Alexander B. La Forge and Gerald H. Nason of the Bureau of Chemistry.

Used for Many Articles

The importance of furfural production on a large scale is apparent, Dr. Skinner said, "when it is realized that such widely used articles as printing plates—light, durable substances for electro-type—phonograph records, paper stem, cigarette holder, musical instruments, etc., are made of hard rubber, buttons, linoleum, busses, glue, and a hundred other standard articles are now being made and from synthetic resins compounds. These compounds are made with furfural."

The synthetic resins industry, like chemists discovered the secret of making tires about fifteen years ago, has had a remarkable growth. The raw materials used in this industry are chiefly formaldehyde and phenol (carbolic acid). These two compounds chemically combined, condense into a solid which is highly valuable as the basis for making the articles enumerated. Through tests have proved furfural to be an excellent substitute for formaldehyde in this work.

Can Be Used as Fuel.

The possibilities of conservation may be seen when it is explained that the source of formaldehyde is methanol (wood alcohol) and that methanol is produced chiefly from the destruction distillation of hard woods, such as birch, beech, oak, maple and elm. The soft woods, while they are more plentiful in America, produce such low yields of methanol that they are of small value as a source of supply. The present price of formaldehyde is 8 to 10 cents per pound for a 40 per cent solution. Under ordinary conditions furfural now in general use, the products sells for about 50 cents per pound. The present price of methanol is about 60 cents per gallon.

Dr. La Forge has reported the successful use of furfural as a fuel in an automobile engine. But, because of its high boiling point, he said it cannot be used with the type of carburetor suited to gasoline.

Will Erect Plant.

The method of producing furfural is simple. The corn cobs, with some water, are placed in a cylinder or pressure cooker and steam at about 185 pounds pressure is turned in. After cooking about two hours, the furfural comes off with steam passed through a condenser and collection as a solution of furfural in water. This solution is then distilled in a special apparatus for the separation of the furfural from the water.

Plans are now under way, it was announced, for the erection of the first commercial plant to utilize this new process. It will probably be located somewhere in the corn belt, where raw materials are close at hand.

BIG CONSPIRACY IN LIQUOR HIDDEN ON SIRIUS, BELIEF

NORFOLK, Va., June 11.—Navy men, who were convicted some time ago of the smuggling of whiskey from the West Indies and sentenced to terms in the naval prison at Portsmouth N. H.

Admiral Rodman said that he had suspected for sometime that liquor was being smuggled in wholesale quantities on naval vessels from the West Indies. He said that he had tried to get the co-operation of the authorities in the West Indies to break up this traffic, which, he is convinced, is backed financially by an American bootlegging syndicate.

The presence of whiskey aboard the Sirius was discovered Saturday, when the transport was discharging cargo at the navy yard. She had recently reached port from the West Indies. Information relative to the contraband goods was conveyed to Admiral Philip Andrews, commanding officer of the yard, who ordered a marine detachment to board the vessel and seize the liquor.

No arrests had been ordered to-night and none will be, it is understood, until the official board of inquiry shall have made a thorough investigation of the case.

Trend of Paganism Seen As Menace

International Sunday School Convention to Present Plan of Universal Public Religious Education.

Nothing Harmful In Nose Thumbing

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 12.—A plan for universal public religious education, as "the only way to stop the paganism of America" will be reported to the International Sunday School convention, which meets here June 21-27.

Civilization without Christianity is described by delegates to the convention as "paganism" and results from education without religious instruction. In the opinion of the supporters of the plan, "to assert their belief that foreign elements in the population have taken advantage of decay of honest religious influence in America and that the best Americanization is to be found in religious education.

Christianity as "the fountain of social progress" rather than a collection of dogmas is the ideal seen by the convention leaders. They urge Christian leadership in popular music and education of the drama as religious art.

Three days of the convention's session are to be devoted to consideration of the report of the committee on religious education. Among the speakers on the report expected to be present are Dr. Walter S. Athearn, director of the school of religious education of Boston university; Prof. Luther A. Weigle, chair of education, Yale university; Dr. W. E. Coffey, editor in chief of the Dept. of Education's publication North Dr. Wade Craddock, associate editor of "Sunday School Review"; Dr. John W. Scott, president of each of the Southern Baptist, Methodist Episcopal and Methodist Church.

Those attending the convention will be William Lyon, who was invited to speak at the convention twice, and first and second being recalled and a second invitation based upon insistence by his friends will speak and his address is expected to be the feature of the day.

Hermit Of Molokai Is Satiated Alone

(By the Associated Press)

HONOLULU, June 12.—Brother Duton, the "hermit" of Molokai, the outer island of the Hawaiian group, celebrated his 7th birthday and as 30th year of labor among the exiled inhabitants of the colony on the rock-bound peninsula of Kauaiwao, recently, according to messages to friends in Honolulu.

"I am still healthy and the outside world has no interest for me. While the curse of leprosy has forced me to live alone, I do not feel any regret over it. I have a good life, though I have been separated from my wife and children for twenty years. The penalty is a socially severe when you are living in the house.

Officers Cry for Mufti

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Planned and authorized officers of the War Department during these trying days are having so much to do, serious consideration is being given a suggestion for all command posts to be filled by civilian personnel to whom no military service is required.

Secretary of War Weeks is a non-commissioned officer and is expected to favor the suggestion.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—"I suffered for a year with nervous troubles and irregularities before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My back pained all the time and I was unfit for housework. I was worn out! I cooked a meal, and was unable to do my washing. My girl friends and my sister told me if I would take your Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills I would be relieved. After taking the first bottle I felt better, and neglected it awhile, but found I could not do my work until I was stronger. So I took the Vegetable Compound again and now I am the mother of a 19 months old boy. He is fat and healthy and I am sure I could never have carried him if it had not been for your Vegetable Compound. I recommend your medicine to all women although I am young to be advising some one older." — Mrs. CHRIST. PETROFF, 318 W. Liberty St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Shoot 2 Brothers; One Dies, One Dying

Two Others Wounded, One Perhaps Mortally, as Gunmen Fire Ten Shots in Crowd.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Two brothers strolled down crowded James street on the lower east side last evening. As they reached Oak street, two men stepped out of a coffee shop across the street and fired two shots. One brother dropped with a bullet above his heart, while the other, shot through the right side, began to run with halting steps toward the Oak street police station, a block or two away.

The shots continued until ten had been fired and two bystanders shot one probably mortally. The street was full of women, children and men and a wild scramble to get out of the bullets' path ensued.

The second brother fell after running a few feet, whereupon the two who had fled ran across James street and disappeared.

The brothers were Raphael Le Torre, thirty, of No. 1905 32d street, Brooklyn, and Michael La Torre, twenty-seven, of No. 115 Cherry street.

Patrolman Fred Norman of the Oak street station ran up just as the gunmen disappeared and found Raphael still alive. Stopping an automobile, the officer started with him to Beekman hospital, but he died on the way. He refused to tell the officers anything about the shooting.

Other police running up from the station where the shots had been heard, found Michael on the sidewalk and called an ambulance. They also picked up Salvator De Franzio, thirty, of No. 67 Catherine street, and Salvator Collo, forty-five, of No. 68 James street, who was shot on the right side of the head. The men were bandaged by Dr. Peeler, of the Beekman hospital and taken there. Michael and De Franzio probably will die. Collo is in no serious danger.

The brothers were well known in the neighborhood. According to the police both have long criminal records. While the motive for the shooting is unknown it is thought to be the outcome of a bootleggers' quarrel.

Partly Cremated Body Not Actor's

CHICAGO, June 12.—Mystery surrounding the identity of the man whose partially cremated body was found on a funeral pyre in the lonely Indiana sand dunes, was deepened today when Kenneth Anderson, 19-year-old vaudeville actor and former bank clerk, was identified. It had been thought that Anderson was the victim, but he was found at a downtown hotel and visited the scene of the tragedy.

"I never saw this suitcase before," he said, when shown the suitcase bearing his name and which had been identified by his brother.

Anderson also when shown

Anderson was also unable to identify any of the clothing, the rifle with its stock burned off, or other articles found near the body. He said he had been at the Y. M. C. A. Hotel in Chicago all the time and telephoned his mother from that place, assuring her he was alive after his brother had identified the suitcase.

This leaves the authorities without a clew to work on. There is no trace of the two women and a man who bought the two-gallon can and had it filled with kerosene and which the authorities feel certain was used to saturate the body of the murdered man.

Although rich in minerals, Spain has comparatively few industries, and only 10,000 miles of railway.

WHITE HOUSE DINNERS COST SEVERAL THOUSAND DOLLARS

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Plans of the Republican National committee to raise a campaign fund of $500,000 to create public sentiment favorable to the return of a Republican Congress in the November election were detailed to President Harding today by Fred W. Upham, treasurer of the National committee.

Republican plans with respect to the campaign as formulated at the meeting here, together with the decline of party leaders as to funds, furnished Senator Harrison, Democrat Mississippi, with a theme for a speech in the Senate during the day. The meeting was said by Senator Harrison to indicate that Republican leaders were "going out again to buy an election."

Senator McCormick, of Illinois, chairman of the Republican Senatorial campaign committee, replying to the Mississippi Senator, said participation in the meeting could constitute an offense against good citizenship.

The Mississippi Senator, continuing, said that he was not forgetting the sacrifice of one of the many White House dinners, and their possible connection with legislation, all of which may mean something toward perpetuation of the Harding political machine.

He added that eating at dinners such as the party leaders had here during their conference "must cost several thousand dollars a plate."

The sky is the limit on contributions to the Republican campaign fund again this year," Mr. Harrison continued. "Anything big goes. Of course, they then will place a tariff on cash registers, so that contributions may come from that direction and take the tax on chewing gum, so that more money can come from there. It is all fixed, all set."

On the other hand, the American people are not forgetting that the Republicans reduced taxes," reported Mr. McCormick. "They are not forgetting that the small taxpayer had half of his income tax taken off; that instead of spending $6,000,000,000 this year, like the Government spent the last year of Democratic rule, we will spend only three and a half billion."

NOMINATIONS ARE MADE

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Meyer Lissner and Rear Admiral William Benson, retired, were nominated by President Harding today for re-appointments to the Shipping Board. Their present terms are due to expire at midnight tomorrow.

The nomination of Mr. Lissner is credited to California and that of Admiral Benson to Georgia.

Must remove it daily

Dental science has long been seeking a daily film combatant. Now two effective methods have been found. Authorities have proved them by many careful tests.

A new-day tooth paste has been perfected, to comply with modern requirements. And these two film combatants are embodied in it. The name of the tooth paste is Pepsodent.

Millions of people of some forty races now employ it daily, largely by dental advice.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Ordinary tooth pastes do not effectively combat it. So film-coats have been almost universal.

DRAKES BRANCH, June 13.—(Grapevine Wireless).—Like Brundich Stew, when the political pot boils up no one can tell what's in it. Some things do not show up until the pot is nearly empty, and the dregs may take on the aspect of surprises and dreams in the making. There is an old saw that "too many cooks spoil the broth," and this is a condition to be reckoned with when a man throws his hat into the ring and runs for office. Another ancient maxim fits into the picture also, and that is "delivers us from our friends, we can watch our enemies." We have often thought that if we ever got into a political skirmish with the wags' do would be to round-up all of our supporters and clearly define the issues. In this way we might hope to overcome some of the fool talk indulged in by ardent though unwise boosters. The sad fact is that the candidate has to stand for the methods, manners and means employed by his friends and finds himself often embarrassed if not disgraced.

HOLLYWOOD DULL AND NOT WICKED.

In striking contrast with the lurid accounts of the depths of wickedness in Hollywood, the screen colony which is a suburb of Los Angeles, we are now told that after all it is not such a bad place and that its chief drawback is boredom elevated to the 'steepth degree. It is probably true that half the people in the country in the light of recent exposés involving the screen artists, the murders, attempted killings and licentiousness at midnight parties have formed the opinion that Sodom and Gomorrah have found their twentieth century parallel. This, however, is not at all the picture drawn by a writer who recently spent two weeks in Hollywood for the purpose of finding out all about its vagaries. The self-styled investigator lived in Hollywood two or three years ago and on the occasion of his last trip he found only a decrease in its opulence and he sizes it up as the dullest place imaginable where people go to bed with the chickens simply because there is nothing else to do. He finds the native habitat of the "sceen adonis, the vamp and the trick walker" as the last place in the world to go to in search of that frenzied whirl of sensuous gaiety and he thinks that nearly everything that has been written about the place recently is intensely exaggerated. He was very glad to finish his investigation and to tell him to a city where things were happening and he was greatly disillusioned about the "evils of Hollywood."

A great change has come over the moving picture industry within the past six months. Elaborate salaries are dwindling and the check rein is being put upon the multiplicity of mediocre productions and there is a striving for a smaller number of better pictures. This, of course, is reacting against the hosts who for years have been making a living out of the industry and there is a general sobering up after a period of amazing profligacy. The screen world is getting back to a more normal attitude, largely, we believe, as result of the reaction of public sentiment against loose morals and too much "temperament" which has been mistaken for a free license and a trend away from the conventions of society.

CHAPTER VIII
ALTERNING AFFECTIONS

IT WAS not much after seven when Garrick, Dick and Mrs. Walden rode up in the Usonia elevator. As the door clanged shut, Mrs. Walden motioned Garrick back with a nod.

"I'll be hunting now for the telephone," said Garrick.

He hastened and nervously she nearly stumbled to the door of Ruth's room. She put her hand on the wall to steady herself and listened. She heard voices. She rattled but did not wait for Ruth to open, so the door was not knocked.

"Mummy!" Without a word she rushed Ruth ran to her mother.

She took Ruth's pretty face lovingly in her hands and looked intently into the beautiful blue depths. Mother love and trust were trying to drown "suspicion."

"Ruth—is everything all right with you?" Her hold on Ruth tightened.

"Don't worry, Mrs. Walden," chimed in Vira. "Her only companion last night was a bottle of Omeion Oil and my greasy fingers doing a massaging act."

Garrison called to take Vira to the country and the four motored back to Mrs. Walden's apartment.

"Well, Mummy, it's good to get home. I'm going to kiss you again."

Mrs. Walden looked at her pretty girl and sighed. "What joy it is and what a responsibility to raise a girl in these days of woman's freedom."

"Nothing to what it must be to raise a boy," retorted Ruth. Then a moment later, "Mother, we'll go out to the Club together. I'm going to put on my swankiest gown and get the drop on those old gossips out there—sweep 'em off their ears. Just watch me!"

Dick and Garrick were taking leave. "Now, Ruth," Garrick said gravely smiling, "let me go home and sleep. Don't do anything more until I get a few hours of rest. It takes sleep to keep up with you."

As Dick was prolonging the good-bye and trying to arouse when they were to see each other again a bell opened the ball door and set down a beautiful basket of roses. Ruth's face sank in the doorway. Winkling up her little eyes she looked teasingly at Dick. She drew a card out of the basket and threw it on the table.

"Mummy, see what Jack Curtis sent me. Isn't he thoughtful? They are my favorite shade."

Mrs. Walden looked none too pleased. Dick was in the depths again. He would willingly have stuck on Jack.

Fifteen minutes later back in Garrison's rooms Dick was still poring over the dictograph as he had called when he had overheard Ruth playing in the love game last night.

Garrison picked the headphones up. "You know I never really saw this thing work. What was the matter with it last night?"

"Someone jammed in on the same wave length. I can't see yet how."

Garrison held up his hand. "It's Vira and Glenn in the Pink Room."

He listened intently. "Vira, I've been aching to have you alone. Please, don't get angry at Rae's foolishness with me. I can't stop her without making the crowd sore. You know how it is. I've wanted to tell you this in some place where I could."

"Don't Glenn." There was a silence. Then muffled, "I ought to tell you, but I can't help it. This say you shouldn't be jealous. If you care enough for a fellow—how can you help it?"

"I'm going to tell you a secret. When you gave me that key to give to them, do you know what I did? I got the stuff out first from your house . . . to protect you. I did it on my own. And it was lucky I did. How? I put it in my own garage."

Garrison chuckled. Here at least was one unboned warehouse of the Velvet Gang.

"You fatheads!" This was Rae's voice, interrupting. "Be careful!"

"I wouldn't worry much over Ruth."

YOU'LL GO TO JAIL FOR THIS!

hearts to conquer. Jack swept up with a hurry in his crimson chumby car.

The conversation wafted merrily in the new chumby car.

"Wouldn't you like to try the new roller?"

"Wouldn't? Run me over to Mercury's Garage. I want to see that cracked boat of my own and give some instructions what I want the body done over in. I feel lost without a wheel in my hands. You think mind, Mummy—for a little while."

He had been drugged to impress the crowd at the club but had gone to Jack's house and he broke out in intense love-making.

He edged over under the wheel nearer her. Ruth snatched him.

Suddenly he leaned over to steal a kiss. It went wrong and fell on her ear. Somehow Ruth was glad it was the next moment she had taken Jack's hand and given it a little squeeze in return.

They were just about leaving Mercury's when the faithful McKay who had been watching the departure evidently from the parking space at the Club, tapped lightly on the door of Dick's boathouse workshop.

It was about Glenn," she cried tensely, bringing her two hands together. "You know all about the Inner Circle . . . and Georges. Well, Glenn was our treasurer when we first started—it's in the way I suppose. Oh, it may have been all right when we started. It was fun and all that. It was unique. It was smart. But . . . one thing led to another . . . and . . . Guy. Oh, get him out of it all . . . get him out of it . . . clean!"

"But who's the head of it all—this Velvet Gang, as the police call it?" Garrison exaggerated a bit for effect.

Ruth looked up quickly, a frightened stare on her face. But she said nothing.

"Whose was that gruff voice, a man, that I heard this morning over the dictograph in the Pink Room? Brock?"

Garrison had figured on betrayal by surprise. He in turn was not surprised at the naive stare in return nor by the firm silence. He had seen too many women on the witness stand. Ruth had made up her mind to talk—but not too much. He decided it was best to let it go at that; not to try any social third degree. She would come around. They agreed not for the present to be seen together.

and Jack," put in the professor. "Those youngsters seem to me to be quite capable of taking care of themselves—at least Ruth does." He paused a moment. "I think I know enough of their habits from watching them around here at the Club to guess where they might go. I've got to go over to the old Seaville Station this afternoon. I'll take a look at some of the places on the way where they might stop—the garage, for instance."

In the late afternoon Curtis drew up at the Binnacle, a queer old place furnished like the cabin of an old clipper ship. There was a wireless at the Binnacle and broadcast music.

"Tea!" ordered Jack, turning from Ruth toward the waiter.

"Two? Yes, sir." The waiter wrinkled.

Jack leaned over. "Going to see what that whin' meant," he whispered to Ruth as he followed the waiter out. A moment and he returned. "Name's Herman. He's all right," he explained.

A few minutes later Herman appeared with cocktails in tea cups.

"Here's looking at—" Ruth and Curtis had the cups balanced, ready to taste.

"Don't!"

Ruth looked at him surprised.

"Why?"

"It's a drug—ether—something."

He turned quickly toward the waiter, rose, seized him by the shoulder, swung him around. Then he reached into the waiter's waistcoat pocket and drew out a little vial.

"You'll go to jail for this, Herman!"

"Planted on me!"

"That's what they always do."

The screen door of the porch swing opened and Professor Varo strode in. He had evidently heard the whole story on the other side of the table, between Ruth and Dick. Before anyone could say a word he had closed the screen door and bolted it.

"Come, let's have a love potion," he said, "and get away from Ruth."

"I'll go to jail for getting out of my car just now outside young man!"

CHAPTER IX
THE DIRECTION FINDER

Meanwhile, on the opposite porch of the Club which was otherwise deserted, Vira, only a few moments before, had tucked her arm nervously under Garrick's and drawn him into the privacy of the glassed-in, winter colonnade.

"You may come, too, Dick," she nodded back to him. "There—please shut the door." She glanced at Garrick, half confiding, half fearful of him. "I've been so afraid—ever since I found out how the walls might have ears!"

There was something seething in her mind and Garrick was just about to make some reassuring remark that would release the tension and open the floodgates of her heart. Vira, all animation, now that she had taken him, did not wait to give him a chance.

"It's about Glenn," she cried tensely, bringing her two hands together. "You know all about the Inner Circle . . . and Georges. Well, Glenn was our treasurer when we first started—it's in the way I suppose. THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH OF SYRACUSE, N.Y., WHICH HOPES TO CLEAR $25,000 THIS YEAR THROUGH BUSINESS METHODS, AND (INSET) ITS PASTOR, REV. BERNARD C. CLAUSEN.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., June 13.—Running a church on a business basis," said the efficiency experts. "Install a cigar stand and other things necessary to the comfort of guests."

Some of the 2,500 members were apathetic. But the Rev. Bernard C. Clausen, pastor, supported the efficiency engineers.

"Why not?" he asks. "The wives are all conducted on a business basis. Why not we who have not the fear of the law to hinder us?"

"Keep Up With Times"

"The things we ministers are called upon to fight are with us. Our enemies take advantage of the findings of science. Why should we not?"

So the church went on a business basis.

SUBSIDY BILL TO BE REPORTED

WASHINGTON, June 12.—President Harding's demand for speed in the framing of the administration's subsidy bill resulted tonight in announcement by the mercantile marine committee that it would be submitted to the House tomorrow.

Meanwhile, the Republican steering committee, which directs the legislative program of the House—was considering the president's urgent request that the bill be put to a vote as a party measure, if necessary, prior to any adjournment of Congress. At a conference today with Representa-

leader, the president reiterated his belief that the measure was of vital interest to the business welfare of the country and that it should not go over until the short session, beginning in December.

NOTICE

Violation for dogs to run at large on street without being muzzled. J. R. BELL Chie of Police. 6-9B&R3t

Dr. John W. Bradnax, coroner of South Richmond, today announced that he will hold an inquest into the death of Conductor Burleson at the third Police station at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. Captain Zimmerman, of the third station, today said that the report that Crosby, one of the suspects held, had made a confession is erroneous—that the negro is wanted and word has been sent out to bring him to the station and that he simply came voluntarily but that he did not make any admission of guilt.

The stabbing occurred about 6:20 o'clock. Conductor Burleson was taking tares and one of the negroes, alleged to have been Pugh, who, in addition to being charged with being a suspicious character, is charged with being drunk and disorderly on the car, became so violent that the conductor was compelled to eject him. The car had reached Nineteenth street and Hull As soon as Conductor Burleson had put the negro off, a crowd of about seventy-five negroes seemed to spring up as if from the ground. Knaves made their appearance and the conductor was compelled to fly.

R. C. Elliott, 1311 North Twentieth street, on whose auto running board Conductor Burleson jumped in an effort to elude his pursuers, today described the occurrence as follows:

"My auto was standing on the North east corner of Twenty-ninth and Hull streets when I heard a commotion in the direction of the street car which was between Nineteenth and Twenty-eighth on Hull. The conductor climbed over the railing on the east side of the car—it being one of the summer cars—and he ran toward my car and jumped on the running board. As he did so he said, 'Get a cop.' I was just starting in car and I gave it gas and moved off just as rapidly as possible, but the crowd was right behind. I could not see exactly what was happening when he was on the running board because my brother-in-law, W. H. Worrell, and a little child were in the seat behind me and the conductor windshield with his right hand. He was facing south and we were going north on Hull.

"He was stabbed on the right side of the body near the hip. It seemed to me it must have been a left handed person who did it. I saw several negroes pursuing the conductor and several of them caught up with the car. I did not see any one of them with a knife, but my right hand was hanging over the side of the car and I felt the warm blood pouring over it and when I looked at it my hand was covered with blood. Then he said to the conductor, 'Man, you are cut,' and he looked down at the place and said, 'O, my God' and clapped his hand over the place. We had not gone far when a man motioned to us to stop and look behind and we saw a policeman come up. The conductor then jumped off the running board to the curb and walked about six steps and fell down. Some one who had come up to get him to a telephone pole so that he could sit up, but he was dead already."

Following the stabbing a large crowd of citizens gathered at the scene, and for a time a racial clash was feared. The police, however, took the situation in hand and sentiment soon became more quiet. Five arrests were made. Four negroes were arrested immediately, and Robert Coal, an Negro who was also under suspicion came to the station later night when he heard that he was wanted and submitted to arrest. He did not make any confession, and denies having a part in the stabbing.

The police, however, allege that both he and Harlan were at the scene and they believe that one or both of them may be implicated in the stabbing.

Captain Alexander S. Wright today said the negro heard a warrant was issued for him and came to the station and gave himself up. In police court, Part II, the case of all five of the negroes were continued to June 22.

They were held without bail.

CHILD OF SLUMS CRIES HATRED FOR FATHER OF UNBORN BABE

RODIE HARRISON, AND TWO SCENES IN HER LIFE'S TRAGEDY.

NEW YORK.—June 13.—One boy dead, another facing the death chair for slaying, and little girl facing motherhood which she fears and dreads—that's how the curtain falls on New York's latest tragedy of the tenements.

It was a short act, but a dramatic one.

The characters were Rosie, Tom Harrison, brother and sister and James Tierney.

Tierney wronged Rosie. Tom told him to marry her. Tierney refused. Tom shot him.

"And one was right," Rosie declares. She is now at the city hospital, awaiting the birth of her child.

"I did not love James Tierney," she sobs. "I was afraid of him, I hate him! He threatened me with a knife, and frightened me so I could not call for help. If he treated me like this, he would treat other girls."

In his cell, Tom said, "I did what any brother would do to a fellow who pretended to be his friend and then betrayed his sister—and a big little girl like Rosie at that."

"I know how things were until 'Sis' went to the hospital," dad told me. I told Tierney he'd got to do the square thing by Rosie. He said he wouldn't have anything more to do with her and she called her nasty name.

"I saw red. I shot him. Then I went to the police and confessed all. I haven't seen a lawyer and I don't intend to. I've made a mess of things—but what could a fellow do under such circumstances?"

Rosie hasn't had much in her 16 years but hard work and tragedy. Her mother died when she was 12.

"I left Rosie to keep house for her father and care for the two younger children. It meant three meals a day, cleaning and washing and ironing.

That didn't leave much time for school or play. So it is no wonder she's undersized with a face old enough for a girl twice her years.

No wonder she wants to give her away as soon as it is born. She's seen many babies down in that tenement, and to her babies mean only more drudgery—and tragedy.

But Tom shouldn't die. He did what he thought was right, what was right!

He shot James Tierney not only for what he had done to me, but for what he would have done to other girls."

Many people deny themselves the comfort of tinted lenses for Summer use because they think that if they once become accustomed to colored glasses they cannot do without them.

This is but a mistaken notion, as the eye readily adapts itself to different light conditions. Sunlight is about six times as strong in July as in January, yet no injury is suffered because of this.

A pair of Galeski Tinted Glasses is an investment in Summer Eye Comfort.

Militarism Is Fast
Waning In Japan

TOKYO, June 13.—Among the masses of the people in Japan militarism is becoming more unpopular every day.

The militarists leaders still retain their power—but by a margin more slender and with a grip more precarious and uncertain than ever before. How long they can hold out against the increasing tide of popular desire is a matter of conjecture. It may be brief. It may be long. But ultimately—unless every clear indication of today is reversed—they will lose.

That will mean a reduction in the size of Japan's standing army, a shorter term of compulsory military service, a great curtailment in the cost of running the government, increased money and energy applied to industry by government and individuals and, of most importance, a government more responsive to the wishes of the people.

For months numerous newspapers and many political leaders have been hammering militarism, demanding Siberian evacuation and army reduction. This campaign is stronger now than it has ever been, is still increasing and bids fair to continue in checadero effect until the object is accomplished—however long that may take.

The reaction of the people is distinctly apparent. This spring thousands of youths throughout Japan are being called to the colors under the universal compulsory military service system. In every day and village and temple draft boards are now finding that they have ever experienced, according to numerous reports in the Japanese newspapers.

In some cases drafted men have shown absolute defiance—a thing not known before and one of much significance. The Osaka Mainichi tells of a conscript who declared to the military inspector:

"I am a socialist by business. If you put me in the army I will Bolshevize the whole barracks!"

He wasn't put in the army. He was put in jail. He just secured his first job with a Osaka merchantile house and is fairly representative of that vast army of young students abroad in Japan today—virtually all of liberal tendencies, of political penchant and progressive ambition. They make up the most vital potential force in "new Japan." And this a few of them are daring to do that heretofore unheard of thing—flatly refuse to render compulsory military service.

One of the best informed and most reliable Japan newspaper editors said to me:

"There has been a vast change in the viewpoint and attitude of the young men of Japan. There was a time in the past when every boy almost wanted to be a soldier. The height of ambition was to be an officer. Today all that is changed. The boy, the college student, wants to be a professional or better public service. He wants to avoid the army if he can possibly do so. He wants to get fame, money to lead a peaceful and successful life in private enterprise. We are too busy, there are too many things we want to do, to give at least two years of our lives—make more—and spend millions of our money each year on our army—and perhaps bring about another war sometime because of the existence of that army."

Atmosphere What Women Look For

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 13.—Women like "what may be termed atmosphere" in advertising, Mrs. Anna D. Oleson of Cloque, Minn., candidate for the democratic nomination for United States Senator from Minnesota, told the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the world today.

She said that the modern woman demands not only utility, but also "beauty and comfort in order to have a home atmosphere equal to that of king and queen a few centuries ago."

"When a merchant pays $500 for an ad in a paper he wants to use the space to the best possible advantage," Mrs. Oleson said. "He may make it thirty, forty, sixty, eighty, or one hundred per cent. efficient. The cost of the space is the same. It is the advertiser's business to say how it shall be made efficient.

"First, we want courtesy. Secondly we want an appeal to our intelligence and not to our prejudices. Thirdly, we want to get a full and honest value for the price paid. It is a strong point to us that a firm will refund us the purchase price of anything bought, if it does not prove satisfactory.

"Not all the advertising is print. Courtesy, promptness of service, forethought of personal comfort such as drinking fountains and rest rooms, have their value. The simple fact of placing a product before the eyes of people on paper will undoubtedly make sales, however.

"The sign that says "It ain't toothache—it is tobacco" is grotesque. It injures the sense of beauty, are and production. Five or six miles from a large city at the turn or bend of the road there is apparently a large book telling a few sentences the history of the city are approaching. Though it says very little about the town it advertises, we feel as we are passing by that the manufacturer is interested in our welfare; he has given us some worth while information; he has appealed to our intelligence.

"A cordial smile and a handshake is necessary for the success of a small cross roads store; it is equally necessary to carry that principle of cordial service into large organizations. Service pays, and advertising which renders public service also pays. Women do most household buying.

Paris Temps Blames U. S.
for Berlin Loan Failure

PARIS, June 12.—The unfavorable opinion given the report of the international bankers on the question of loaning money to Germany reached a climax in an editorial in the Temps which arraigned the work of the bankers as a complete failure. It says the report tries to throw upon France the blame of the failure of the bankers. The Temps continues that the German bankers' failure was impossible without a reduction in German reparations, but it does not dare let a reduction in the German debt be made responsible by the maturing of American debt.

In fact, the Temps continues, "the committee does not hesitate to repeat a conclusion that refers upon France if it takes place, not to renew the conclusion which it has passed upon the United States. It is true that the French, when it knows very well the blow struck by the American loans, it is a case of new punishment. Small countries expect that the bankers of the United States would have so much gold?"

KILLED BY OLD SHELL

TODAY

PROUD yes, proud we are to present the consummate dramatic achievement of the truest of all screen artists—Norma Talmadge.

The World hails her as the first to reach perfection in her art; acclaims "Smilin' Through" as the wonderful symbol of that ascension.

She offers you—

Love that is an ecstasy of the soul—the awakening of the childheart.

Love that is a fervent transport—the heartflame of Mooneyen, the Woman. Then Tragedy! A ruthless rival's bullet. Love unfilled.

Years! Years of forgetfulness—years that reincarnate the love of Mooneyen, the Woman, in the heart of Kathleen, the Girl.

And—once more—the spectral threat of the olden spoliation.

Elusive, tender, dynamic, her drama knows no bounds but those of the human heartstrings.

One artiste only could bring "Smilin' Through" majestically to the screen. You'll love her in it.
